Describe any program or educational materials developed during the reporting period.

No educational materials were developed during this reporting period.

Describe any planning or training events held during the reporting period.

No significant planning or training events were held during the reporting period.

Describe any program policies changed during the reporting period.

While there were no significant changes to the way program policies were implemented, we did codify many previously implemented program policies into a comprehensive VOCA Administrative Manual. The manual, finalized in December 2020, brought together previously separately documented policies and procedures into a single document.

Describe any earned media coverage events/episodes during the reporting period.

There were not any earned media coverage events or episodes during the reporting period.

Describe any coordinated responses/services for assisting crime victims during the reporting period.

Office of Crime Victim Advocacy (OCVA) and the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) meet approximately twice monthly to coordinate responses and services statewide. OCVA staff meets regularly with the Children's Advocacy Centers of Washington to discuss the service needs for children who have been victims of abuse. OCVA staff meet regularly with the Washington Coalition of Sexual Assault Programs to discuss sexual assault services across the state. OCVA staff meets regularly with Harborview Center for Sexual Assault and Traumatic Stress to confer on Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner services, training needs (not funded with VOCA). OCVA staff participate on the Sexual Assault Forensic Exam (SAFE) Task Force, which involves work to address untested sexual assault forensic exam kits. The Office of Crime Victim Advocacy and DSHS conduct quarterly meetings/conference calls with state crime victim coalitions and associations to share VOCA implementation updates and gather information about emerging issues or needs state coalitions and associations may be hearing about from victim service programs throughout the state.

Please discuss the major issues in your state that either assist or prevent victims from receiving assistance during the reporting period.

Our service providers continue to struggle with the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. While most of our service providers that had to close their offices last year have reported that they've re-opened, some service providers still struggle as staff may not yet feel safe working with the public. Combined with the significant loss in local support and outreach opportunities triggered by the cancellation of the majority of in-person events in the last year, providers often report feeling overwhelmed.

Please describe ways that your agency promoted the coordination of public and private efforts within the community to help crime victims during the reporting period.

Washington State VOCA Assistance Administrators support the coordination of public and private efforts that help crime victims through local subgrantee activities. All VOCA-funded local subgrantees work collaboratively with agencies in their communities to provide victim-centered services. Domestic violence, sexual assault, and crime victim service providers routinely partner with allied professionals in law enforcement, prosecution, and the court system.

Please describe any notable activities at the grantee level during the reporting period that improved delivery of victim services.

One notable success story at the grantee level is the success of a project at Dove House, a crime victim service provider in Jefferson County, Washington. Dove House received a two year grant for a special project related to Behavioral Health and/or Substance Abuse. The grantee used the funding to cover the cost of an advocate/case manager at their newest program, Recovery Caf. Recovery Caf serves adults who are recovering from the effects of mental illness, addiction, violence, and trauma. By providing long term recovery support in their rural community, it met the need of longer term recovery support for crime victims experiencing these issues. The program has provided support groups/recovery circles, advocacy, and other holistic services to meet the need of crime victims with these needs, picking up support when emergency interventions and other modalities of recovery treatment end. While the program does provide access to 12-step meetings and behavioral health treatment, the program does not supplant those options – it provide access to these existing resources while also providing an alternative to traditional institutions. This is merely one example of a grantee that is doing noteworthy and innovative work.

Please discuss each priority (i.e., child abuse, domestic assault, sexual assault, and underserved) in which VOCA funds have been used to assist crime victims during the reporting period

This reporting period we continued to provide services to victims of child abuse via the Children's Advocacy Center Child Centered Services VOCA Initiative. We set aside 6.4% of our VOCA grant subrecipient dollars to Child Advocacy Centers. In addition, this reporting period we also funded a new to direct funds to other providers of service to children, with the Victims of Child Abuse and Neglect Initiative which funded one time 12 months grants to programs providing services to child victims of abuse and neglect who would not otherwise receive VOCA funding. Our Domestic Violence Shelters continues to support victims of Domestic Violence across our state. With the increase in VOCA funds, we were able to fund these programs more fully than previously, allowing them to provide quality services to more victims than ever before. In addition, many of our DV shelter providers applied for and received one of the complementary competitive grants for enhancement of current services, which has allowed them to try out new modalities of service, including several different forms of housing assistance and advocacy designed to assist survivors in securing and moving into safe and stable housing, provide relocation support, or assist survivors to remain in their current housing. Our network of sexual assault providers has similarly benefited from the implementation of Washington's VOCA plan. Advocates are now being compensated at living wages and staff vacancies filled. The state's 36 accredited Community Sexual Assault Programs continue to guarantee access to every sexual assault victim in Washington, adult or child, to the services of crisis intervention, information and referral, medical/legal advocacy, and support. In addition to these core services, providers across the state continue to offer specialized sexual assault services (therapy, support groups, medical social work) as well as culturally and community specific advocacy and therapy services. Underserved victims of other crimes are funded in Washington through variety of different initiatives. Victim Witness Assistance Units, located in 38 of our county Prosecutor's offices, work with victims of all crime types, including victims of assault, elder abuse, and other crimes. Our network of 35 Crime Victim Service Centers across the state serve victims of all crimes other than Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence. Our Human Trafficking initiative focuses resources for victims of sex trafficking and labor trafficking. Services to tribal grantees via our Tribal Government Initiative continue to serve a wide variety of crime types in 19 of our state s 29 federally recognized tribes, and include focus areas of elder abuse, child abuse, and other underserved crime types. Similarly, our initiatives to fund Services By and For Marginalized Communities fund all crime types within populations historically impacted by discrimination. Our By and For Initiative recently completed a funding cycle, meaning we ve funded a total of 60 By and For grants to programs that are culturally based, directed, and substantially controlled by communities historically impacted by discrimination.

Please briefly describe efforts taken to serve Victims of Federal crime during the reporting period.

Several sub-grantees provide support and assistance to victims of labor and sex trafficking. Due to the strategies used by exploiters, individuals are very hesitant to come forward and advocates spend a tremendous amount of time building trust. Support and assistance for these individuals has included in-person advocacy, assistance with accessing medical care, crisis intervention, collaborating with treatment facilities and assisting individuals by purchasing food and clothing. Advocates have provided support during FBI interviews and collaborated with FBI Victim Specialists. Human trafficking grantees located in Seattle are experiencing an increase in referrals related to labor trafficking. One program is providing civil legal assistance to victims seeking T-Visa certification. The program has noticed an increase in domestic servitude cases. Another program in Seattle is providing support and assistance to victims of labor trafficking and assisting individuals in accessing housing and other services.

Please identify any emerging issues or notable trends affecting crime victim services in your state during the reporting period.

We are preparing for an increase in reporting of crimes that experienced a decrease in reporting during the shelter-in-place orders, such as reports of child abuse, neglect, and crimes against elders. However, this comes in conjunction with a decline in the amount of funding available, and we are anticipating we will begin to see longer wait times for services as many of our grantees are already at capacity.

Please briefly outline any staffing retention issues that your victim assistance program has and why these issues may occur during the reporting period.

The Washington State Office of Crime Victims Advocacy and Department of Social and Health Services both have historically high staff retention rate overall. Staff has served as program coordinators, section managers, and director for up to twenty-five years. While the state government does not provide compensation at the same rate as the private sector, it does offer reasonable benefits, union membership, and a work/life balance. With the recent increase in the VOCA Assistance award, administrative funds have allowed the department to hire more staff in order to develop and implement new subgrant programs, shift workloads to be more equitable, and increase staff s ability to address more complex issues.

Please explain your state process to publicize its victim assistance funding for services to victims of crime during the reporting period.

This reporting period, funding opportunities were publicized in a variety of ways. Grant applications were released to current grantees for continuation of domestic violence and sexual assault services grants. Funding opportunities were advertised to current grantees via email, publicized to state coalitions, and application materials were posted on the state administering agency s website. In addition, outreach was conducted throughout the year by individual staff members to ensure that current subrecipients and others that might wish to become subrecipients were aware of different opportunities. Current subrecipients were repeatedly encouraged to reach out to other agencies within their respective communities to share information on available funds. We also posted our open competitive funding solicitations on the Washington Electronic Business Solution (WEBS) portal.

Please explain how your state is able to direct funding to new/underserved populations during the reporting period.

One of the more heartbreaking aspects of the reduction in funding is the increase in awareness of our funding opportunities. When we initially experienced an increase in VOCA funding, we struggled to encourage new or underserved populations to apply for funding or, in some cases, to even return our phone calls. However the few new programs that took that chance had such a positive experience that word has spread. Now we regularly encounter application processes with far more applicants than we have funds available. We continue to commit to finding ways to provide funding to new/underserved populations, in some situations by targeting funding (as we did with the Victims of Child Abuse and Neglect grant mentioned in an earlier question) to entities that don t already have access to VOCA dollars.

Please explain how your program is able to respond to gaps in services during the reporting period.

One way we do this is through regional community planning processes conducted by current subrecipients. The Office of Crime Victims Advocacy supports local control of funding and service decisions within the Sexual Assault programs to address unmet needs and gaps within that service area. Another way we address gaps in service is through an analysis of funding allocated and services provided. We analyze data on all of the grants funded through the Washington State VOCA Plan, as well as the data reported by those grantees. By analyzing agencies and projects funded, as well as crime victims served, and cross referencing that data against state demographics and crime prevalence information, we identify areas where gaps in services may exist, and target additional funding opportunities toward those areas where flexibility within our statewide plan allows. For example, past efforts resulted in priority areas within the Unmet Needs competitive funding solicitation, based on that analysis of gaps. State administrators meet regularly to discuss currently funded service areas, remaining needs, and develop strategies for funding gaps.

Please list and explain any outcome measure(s) that are reported to the governor, legislature, or other state entity during the reporting period.

We did not report any outcome measures to state entities this reporting period. Outcome measures to our Governor s office that we previously reported on are still on hold, and as of this reporting, no date has been announced to return to that outcome reporting.
